MISS LEPAGE ENJOYS HARD WORK IN JAIL

By DOROTHY AMES.

Hattie Le Page at play and Hattie Le Page at work are practically one and the same, for work is never weary in its search of labor to the pretty little prisoner who will soon face a trial in which her life hangs in the balance.

There is not a lazy bone in her whole body, to plagiarize from the "made old" proverb, and at the same time she never yawns, computation, she works for the short hour of doing something useful. She is eager to do and does everything she attempts well.

She is as prompt and tidy herself that the matrons of the prison are proud to say that they always find her cell when they visit it as neat as a pin.

Doesn't Have to Work.

Hattie Le Page is not obliged to work and do nothing. But she wants to work and asked for work to do. Because she is a housewife, she was put to work in the laundry and has there done unusually well.

After a pleasant one day's vacation from work, she is then obliged to conform to the usual routine of the prison. She must be ready to leave her cell at 6 o'clock. She then goes down to breakfast. After eating her own breakfast, she goes to work in the kitchen.

After the breakfast with a business and dignified, while making the inmates watch her.

Doesn't Talk Much.

Having finished that task, she goes down into the laundry, where a certain number of articles are assigned to her to do. Hattie is selected to do all the fine work because she does it so well.

Her portion, she does as if it were to do it at home. At no time is she restrained from self conversation, and she is free to talk to more than one or two of the other inmates.

After dinner, she returns to the laundry and works until 4 o'clock. Then she goes to her cell. She is locked in her cell for the night, although many times she is allowed to do certain little errands for the matrons and assist them in their work.

A Good Thing for Hattie.

Considering the state of women with whom she is thrown in contact, it is a blessing that Hattie is not with the "bad" women. Her father's daughter is a good girl, and she is a good girl.

From the morning until night she is very busy. Apparently she is in perfect health and even appears to be in good luck. She works hard enough so that she sleeps like a child and happily continues on her work in the morning counting on how well she has done.

While other girls in prison for perhaps only a week or two are working their hands and getting the "red" from their faces, Hattie is a good girl, and she is a good girl.

BOSS HARRIS MADE HERE ART IN MUSEUM

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Edward Robinson, a Boston man, has been unanimously chosen by the trustees of the Metropolitan Museum of Art to succeed the late J. Pierpont Morgan, who resigned last summer.

The institution has also been marked by the gift of a valuable old master from J. Pierpont Morgan.

Mr. Robinson is the first American to hold the position to which he has been elected. He has been for five years assistant director of the Museum, and since Mr. Morgan's death he has been acting director.

Once Served in Boston.

He was previously director of the Boston Museum of Arts, and he came to this city at the beginning of the term of office of Mr. Follen. He is not an authority on classical art and takes a deep interest in other branches. He will have a museum and will direct the affairs of the Museum through the curators of the various departments.

He was born in Boston on November 1, 1864, and on his natal anniversary today also full charge of the institution. He is a native of the city, and was educated in the city. He is a member of the Boston Art Club, and is a member of the Boston Art Club.

The New Morgan Gift.

Mr. Robinson's new gift to the institution is a magnificent old piece. The acquisition of the Virginia by the Metropolitan Museum of Art is a most important one. It is a work of the 15th century, and is a work of the 15th century.

The Virgin and Child. The Virgin and Child is a work of the 15th century, and is a work of the 15th century. It is a work of the 15th century, and is a work of the 15th century.

A SURPRISING TEST

Take the best soap you can find, and wash your hair and scalp with it thoroughly. Rinse the hair with water, and wash it out all the latter. Then wash your hair immediately after with a shampoo made of neutral soap, coconut oil, glycerine, white of eggs and salicylic acid. You will be astonished to find how much dust and dirt the ordinary soap left. You will hardly believe your eyes. Birt's Head Wash is made of the above ingredients. The water remaining in the basin after using Birt's Head Wash will convince you better than anything else, and besides, your hair will be the color of gold. You will never know the pleasure of possessing a perfectly clean scalp until you try Birt's Head Wash. It is sold at 25c, at drug and department stores.
